Friday, 02 October 2009

The Freedom ThickSlick made its debut appearance at Interbike this year and could be seen on bikes built by Foes Racing (foesracing.com) and Shorty Fatz (shortyfat.com).

If you desire a fast rolling tire designed and built to provide for improved lifespan and durability, the ThickSlick might be your choice. Not for the road racer, the ThickSlick is designed for the urban rider in mind or the rider clocking in serious commute miles. The ThickSlick is offered with your choice of DuraStrip, a centerline Kevlar strip, or Urban Armor Casing, which consists of a combination of the DuraStrip and added sidewall protection. Best of all, the ThickSlick fits in any budget with price points set at $19.99, $29.99, $39.99. These price points hold throughout the Freedom tire line. Additionally, Freedom offers a great variety of saddles ranging in price from $29.99, $39.99, $49.99.
